

Adapting to reduce impact on London transport

To help minimise the impact that construction workers have on the London travel network, the industry has adapted its working processes where necessary.

We have introduced the following steps:

- a later site opening time
- staggered shift patterns to reduce number of people travelling at a time
- ensuring workers are aware of alternative travel modes available and that there are arrangements in place for parking vehicles or bicycles at site

Details about the current guidance and procedures in place for construction in the UK are available at www.ccscheme.org.uk.
